

RODERICK “CHEF CHAMPION” DINNALL EXECUTIVE CHEF

Roderick Dinnall, known to most as “Chef Champion” is the Executive Chef at Royal Caribbean. He is certified by the American Culinary Federation. His love for culinary arts started at a very young age. He loves to explore various recipes and is always willing to try new ways of preparing a dish.

He enjoys teaching others how to prepare simple and delicious meals. He can prepare any meal by following a recipe. He specializes in Jamaican cuisines and enjoys adding his twists from the traditional way some of the foods were prepared. He believes that business owners must be creative to stand out among the competition to ensure sustainability.

In his current role as executive chef, he teaches other chefs how to prepare meals according to standards. He teaches them how to ensure maximum nutrition and a pleasing appearance. He prides himself on ensuring that sanitation is at its highest level. He has a great relationship with those he mentors and provides valuable feedback including tips and strategies to help them grow. He documents achievement levels, develops corrective actions, and reports findings to the head of the establishments.

When Chef Champion is not busy training other chefs, you can find him on his YouTube cooking channel making an impact through cooking. He wants to share his gifts with the world, but more so, he wants to build a legacy that will serve many generations.
